

Part space station, part time capsule, SpaceCraft, the PennDesign Year End Show, offers a firsthand look at how the next generation of architects, landscape architects, planners, and preservationists are pushing the boundaries of design. A multimedia display of work by more than 200 master's candidates probes connections between the built environment and quality of life, cultural heritage, and social justice.

Part space station, part time capsule, SpaceCraft, the PennDesign Year End Show, offers a firsthand look at how the next generation of architects, landscape architects, planners, and preservationists are pushing the boundaries of design. A multimedia display of work by more than 200 master's candidates probes connections between the built environment and quality of life, cultural heritage, and social justice.

Part space station, part time capsule, SpaceCraft, the PennDesign Year End Show, offers a firsthand look at how the next generation of architects, landscape architects, planners, and preservationists are pushing the boundaries of design. A multimedia display of work by more than 200 master's candidates probes connections between the built environment and quality of life, cultural heritage, and social justice.

Part space station, part time capsule, SpaceCraft, the PennDesign Year End Show, offers a firsthand look at how the next generation of architects, landscape architects, planners, and preservationists are pushing the boundaries of design. A multimedia display of work by more than 200 master's candidates probes connections between the built environment and quality of life, cultural heritage, and social justice.

Part space station, part time capsule, SpaceCraft, the PennDesign Year End Show, offers a firsthand look at how the next generation of architects, landscape architects, planners, and preservationists are pushing the boundaries of design. A multimedia display of work by more than 200 master's candidates probes connections between the built environment and quality of life, cultural heritage, and social justice.